Pastoral Reflections

Rejoice, O our Joy, protect us from all evil with Thy most precious veil!

Our parish feast day - or as we say, our altar feast or feast of dedication - is October 1: the Protection of the Mother of God.

This feast commemorates a vision of the Mother God spreading her veil over the city of Constantinople, signifying that it was under her protection. This was very important, even critical, because the city was under siege and its citizens at the point of despair. The elderly man who had received the vision, St Andrew the Fool for Christ, inspired everyone and they persevered. Those laying siege decamped. The city was saved.

What this vision meant for the people of Constantinople, and what it means for us, is that believers are united in an unbreakable and unending communion of mutual love and care in the Church, together with the Mother of God and all the saints. Indeed, she stands at the head of this communion of the saints, both as our victorious leader and tender-hearted intercessor. She - and they - are not far away, somewhere 'upstairs' and remote from us. They are close at hand. They pray with us and intercede for us. They are right at our elbow, so to speak. We sense them especially in our churches, this cloud of witnesses. We sense their presence in our iconography and hymnography, in our prayers. In church and at home, wherever we are, we pray: Through the prayers of the Mother of God and all the saints, Lord Jesus Christ our God, have mercy on us and save us!

Retirement

As noted in my Pastoral Report at the 2024 Annual Meeting back in February, I had asked for and received from the Archbishop the blessing to retire at the end of the year, subject to finding a replacement. The process for finding a replacement has been complicated, and in fact just recently at the end of August an approximate date for my retirement of 'after Pascha' 2025 was determined. God-willing I will remain as cathedral Dean through until the end of April or early May. I concluded my Pastoral Report with 'Man proposes, God disposes' - and this has proved very true!

Benefactors

At the Divine Liturgy, we pray for all those "that love the beauty of Thy house", and also specifically for its founders and benefactors. Don't we all have the hope that we will be remembered in prayer after we depart this life? We could be remembered in prayer - not as founders of course but as benefactors - by leaving something to the Church so that this community we love will continue to grow and nurture both our next generations and all those drawn to Christ's Church. A benefactor is an imitator of Christ, who is always generous and giving. So many of those who went before us gave generously so that we have the St Mary's Cathedral that we have today!

With this new Church Year, please prayerfully consider leaving something to the Church - to the Cathedral itself, or to the Cathedral Endowment Fund - in your name, or anonymously. The impact of your gifts, of your estate planning, as benefactors of this Holy House, is priceless!

- Fr. Andrew

Choir Notes

An astute observer may notice we tend to sing a lot. But why, why do we sing? Why do we do anything in the church for that matter? To come closer to God, of course. But God does not need us to sing, or to fast, to cross ourselves, or go to church; He is God, He doesn't need these things. We do. We need to sing, we need to pray, we need to go to church, to make prostrations, to fast, and to do all the things prescribed for us by the Church. We need to do these very physical things because by doing them, we soften our hearts and turn towards Him who made us, who loves us, and who has given us everything. By bowing our body, we bow our soul. By singing praises with our voice, we sing praises with our soul.

I had a conversation with another choir director earlier this church year. We were talking about the saying "those who sing, pray twice," and we were trying to decide how this could be true. There's so much happening in a service, from reading music, shuffling music handouts, and watching the director's wildly erratic gestures that we're sometimes lucky if we pray once, let alone twice! The week after the discussion I had the joy of directing a Vespers service during which everyone simultaneously entered this heightened state of prayerfulness. It was an incredible experience, beyond words. But what to make of it? First, the moment was a gift from God. Such a state is only attained through Him as much as we might like to think otherwise. Second, we were singing things that we could sing in our sleep and the "so much happening" vanished, leaving us with unified, uplifted hearts and voices. Worth stating twice, it was an incredible experience.

Following up on the second point, somehow, I don't think "just showing up and singing," or "just showing up and praying," will bring us to that state again. We have to put in effort and work to get to the point of being able to sing things in our sleep. Isn't there another saying about how "work is prayer?" How lucky for us that an opportunity to work is already in place! Every Wednesday evening after Vespers, we have choir rehearsal. And yes, it may sound like we're just horsing around up there, but we are also, in fact, working. A lot.

In the loft we primarily work on how we sound, rather than on prayerfulness. Why? Firstly, I can't help you sing prayerfully; that's inner spiritual work stuff between you and the priest and God and your Guardian Angel and the Theotokos and you get the point. Secondly, it's the same reason we do prostrations and other physical things. We work on physically singing together so that we can pray with uplifted hearts and voices as one.

I'm reminded of a time when someone asked me, "why do we keep going flat?" Given that we were in the middle of a service, I was unable to quickly answer the question in a language the inquirer would understand, and I'm not talking about Italian. But I also wasn't prepared with a quick answer because there are so many reasons why. I've since realized that they all fall under the umbrella, "we sing inefficiently." We use extra muscles that we think we need, but we don't. We take big breaths with our pectorals rather than our diaphragm, we sing high notes by stretching and flexing our neck and tongue up, we sing low notes by pushing the same muscles down, we breathe with our soft pallet low and in the way, and several other things. Said in another way, we have piled onto our voice so many little extras that we think we need, that it struggles, pitches, and falls flat like an overburdened camel, which I've never actually seen... That, amongst other things, is what we are working on at choir rehearsal.

There is a connection here to day-to-day life that an astute observer may notice. How many things have we piled onto our lives, thinking they're important? They must be important, or we wouldn't have piled them on in the first place!...right? Here too, we find another reason to go to church: If we don't, when will we ever find the time to physically and spiritually draw closer to God? How will we stop ourselves from just. drifting. off. into the storm and raging waters of this life?

On that uplifting note, Brothers and Sisters in Christ, please keep me and the family in your prayers; Halloween and the Great Sugar Rush is right around the corner. It is always good to see you, even if we don't speak.

- Mark Wesche

Safety Committee Update

The staff and St. Mary's Cathedral Board Members wish to create a level of security awareness within our Cathedral properties and neighborhood. Recent criminal incidents include graffiti on the Cathedral building, a daytime car theft from the Parish Center parking lot, and a male, non-parishioner has been seen lurking in the basement hallway and women's bathroom at the Cathedral.

We are reporting these to our parish community in hopes that this helps us create an atmosphere of awareness and for all our safety. Considering this, your Cathedral Board has formed a committee to make recommendations for a safer and more transparent environment. Please be aware of your own situational safety, and if you see something, say something. Report any concerns to a clergy member, a service attendant, a building caretaker, or a Safety Committee Member. Please put best practices into place when it comes to your personal property and overall safety.

Examples of property safety include:

- Keep all valuables out of your car or leave them at home.
- Keep in mind that we are a public space as we invite the public to worship with us.
- Stay focused on external safety, always aware of your surroundings, avoid looking at a cell phone.

Examples of personal safety include:

- Mind children and vulnerable adults while in the buildings and out. Know where they are, at all times.
- Use a buddy system. There is safety in numbers.

We ask that you pray for our neighborhood and neighbors, the civil authorities; and for suspects and perpetrators so that they may have a change of hearts and minds.

We will continue to attend worship together and attend events here as usual but want everyone in our community to learn about crime prevention and personal safety skills development. Expect to see more information coming from the Board via the good work of the committee.

(Committee members: Scott and Susan Boris, Liz Korba, Fr. Ben, & Chair Tim Kasino)
